THE REV. CORTLAND MYERS GETS AFTER MAJOR EBSTEIN.

Says He'll Have Greene's Deputy Fired if There's Any More Crookedness -Two More Brooklyn Bookmakers Plead Guilty-Gambiers All in a Panie.

Antonio Valdes, a cigar dealer, at 345 Fulton street, and Arthur Quelch, alias Arthur Smith of 331 Manhattan avenue, two of the big batch of alleged Brooklyn bookmakers who were indicted through the efforts of the Rev. Cortland Myers, pastor of the Baptist Temple, were arraigned for trial yesterday morning before Judge Crane in the County Court.

As was foreshadowed in THE SUN yesterday, as a result of the quick conviction of ex-Assemblyman W. L. Sandford for the same offence, both men pleaded guilty on two counts of the indictment and were remanded for sentence until Monday, their bail being continued meanwhile. They may be sentenced to two years' imprisonment or fined $1,000 each.

The other ten men who were caught in the Rev. Mr. Myers's net have been notified to appear for trial to-day, and some of them, if not all, may, it is expected, follow the example of Valdes and Quelch and save the county the trouble and expense of a

The conviction of Sandford, against whom the prosecution was supposed to have the weakest case, proved a startling surprise to all the other accused handbook men, and, following the advice of their lawyers, they will probably throw themselves on the mercy of the Court.

The Rev. Mr. Mvers, by a single coup and with the aid of only a few carefully chosen agents of the Anti-Vice Society, of which he is the president, has done more to scare the gambling fraternity in Brooklyn and put a stop to their operations than Deputy Police Commissioner Ebstein with all the police machinery under his control has done since he took charge of the Smith tree theadquarters, sixteen months ago.

The Rev. Mr. Myers and his associates in the crusade were jubilant yesterday over their victory. Mr. Myers said:

"I shall now hold Major Ebstein to the

"I shall now hold Major Ebstein to the letter of his promise to stop gambling in Brooklyn and to hold the police captains and inspectors to a strict account for their failure to nab the offenders.

"If he fulfils his promise, well and good; but if he does not. I shall have him removed as surely as the sun shines. I shall ask the Commissioner for his removal in the name of the people of Brooklyn. I will then appeal of the people of Brooklyn. I will then appeal to the Mayor. I will take it to the Governor of the State, and, mark my words, I will create such a sentiment in this city that nothing on earth will save him if he fails one iota in his duty.

"This is only the beginning of the movement, and before we stop we will have those members of the Police Department who have permitted this thing to go on under their very noses. They are a thousand times more guilty than the individual bookmakers, and their guilt is made all the more striking by the knowledge that they have striking by the knowledge that they have been receiving money for protecting these men.

"I wish to state here and now without reservation or qualification that I know absolutely that the police have been receiving money or its equivalent for protecting these bookmakers and poolroom men. I have known it all along, but here is the fact which proves it beyond the shadow of a doubt.

"All the evidence upon which these men were indicted, arrested and convicted has been obtained in the very places given in the list which I read openly from my pulpit and afterward placed in the hands of the authorities since the time that I took the step. Is it within the realm of possibility that after the attention of Commissioner, inspector, captain and patrolmen had been directed to the street and number where the books were being run that these same men would have continued making book in the same places unless they knew that the police would not molest them?

the police would not molest them?

"Could there be any more convincing evidence of police protection than that? Yet since the time of the publication of ny list the evidence on which these men are being convicted has been obtained.

"I do not accuse Major Ebstein of dishonesty, but I do charge him with gross negligence in the discharge of his duty."

Major Ebstein, who sails for Europe to-day, for a rest and incidentally to bring back some police pointers from Books. back some police pointers from Berlin had this to say when informed of the Re-

"I will say nothing about Mr. Myers's attacks upon me and upon the force. I rejoice with him in the conviction of those men, but he is inaccurate in some of his

"I stand by a previous declaration I made that I shall stop gambling in Brooklyn, and that if there is police complicity, protection or connivance, I shall root it out and punish the guilty. "Regarding the threats of Mr. Myers, I have little to say. He charges me with gross negligence. I have been putting in from fifteen to twenty hours at hard work every day since I entered the department every day since I entered the department and doing my best all the time.

"He does not charge me with dishonesty. He'd better not. He says that if I fail to carry out my promises he will seek my removal. It can be effected by a stroke of the pen of the Police Commissioner. Let him go ahead."

The police say that Smith is an all-around crook and is known also as Arthur Seaman. They say he stole a horse and wagon in Amityville, L. POLICE GRAFT-AND I KNOW IT NO TRIAL OF QUINTARD CASE. YACHTS SAIL IN LIGHT AIRS. Miss Braciley Practically Admits the Aliena

Cummings, counsel for Alice Bradley, who is defendant in the suit brought by Mrs Charles Quintard for $50,000, for the alienation of Quintard's affections, has decided that it is best for his client not to have the case tried before a jury; accordingly he has filed an intention to suffer default in fact, which is the proceeding required to have it removed from the jury

The outcome of the action that Miss Bradley's counsel has taken will be that the Court, or com-missioner appointed by the Court, will have a hearing to determine the amount of damages to be allowed The case will really be a question of the amount of dam-ages, and there will be no contention regarding the allegations in Mrs. Quintard's

Mrs. Quintard has refused to accept $10,000 in settlement of the case. Mr. Cummings has been appointed guardian ad litem for Miss Bradley, who is not of age.

AFFIRMS ELDERONE RULING.

Other Cases Decided by Trotting Association Board of Review.

The session of the board of review of the National Trotting Association, at the Mur-ray Hill Hotel, yesterday, was conducted by Charles Dana Palmer, representing the Eastern district; Frank Bower, the Atlantic; William R. Allen, the Central, and F. S. Gor-Western. President P. P. Johnston presided.

the board, known as the Elderone case, came up on appeal, and the former decision was affirmed. In this case the trainer, Stuard, brought the action against the owners of the horse Elderone, asserting that he was directed to lose the race, and that he did so acting under orders. The decision was that the testimony of a self-confessed accomplice was not sufficient to warrant the board in was not sufficient to warrant the board in taki g action.

The secretary was ordered at that time to bring an action against Stuard at the present meeting of the board, and upon this action Stuard was yesterday suspended for one year under section 2 of rule 48.

The case against C. J. Hamblett of Nashua, N. H., and the cases of W. R. Cox and William O'Neil were continued. This was the 2:18 class pacing race, with five starters, at Nashua on July 9 and 10, 1902, in which it was said that every driver was in a combination. The statement was made that Mr. Hamblett was the instigator of the plot, and the testimony of the drivers at the last meeting was to this effect. The secretary was then ordered to bring a case against C. J. Hamblett at the present meeting.

The third important case decided yesterday was that of the dyed horse, Dave Hughes, 2:15%. It appears that James Fogarty of Buffalo had an order from the owner to get the horse at Syracuse and bring him home. Insteadjof returning, Fogarty took the horse to Erie, Pa., where he was dyed from a bay to a chestnut. D. W. Cummings of Shelby, Ohio, owned a chestnut pacer named Dick M., and after Dave Hughes had been died he was taken to Warren, Ohio, and stayed in the 2:30 class, as Dick M. Fogarty won a large sum of money in the pool box and all parties escaped detection at that time. The decision yesterday was that James Fogarty and D. W. Cummings be expelled and the horse Dave Hughes be suspended until the unlawful winnings are returned.

California Steppers Coming East.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 6 .- Monroe Salis-York, with the biggest stable of harness horses that will be campaigned in the East this season by any Californian. Salisbury this year will pin his faith to a great extent in Monte Carlo and Mush. Monte Carlo was one of the sensations of last season He took a record of 2:09% and is therefore eligible to start in the 2:10 class. Mush is the reliance for fast classes at pacing. He is an enormous horse and has shown won-derful speed in his workouts at Pleasanton. Whether he possesses stamina is yet to be determined. Mush was sired by Lottery Ticket, as was also Dick, who goes along in the same car. Ticket, as was also Dick, who goes along in the same car.

A green trotter that will figure in several of the rich events of the year is Monroe, son of Seymour Wilkes, who was a fast pacer in his day. Judge Green, by Directum, is also expected to make a good showing in the East. Salisbury also takes East the young harness horses which Tom Butler purchased at the Palo Alto sale in this city several months ago.

Wind Too Fickle for Them to Have a Brush -Mr. Iselin Thinks Reliance Outpointed Columbia on Monday, but Says Columbla Footed Faster-Constitution Gone.

RELIANCE AND COLUMBIA HAVE

SAIL-STRETCHING SPINS.

It was rather a dull day on the Sound yesterday. The Columbia got out early in the morning and had a good day's practice, the crew being drilled at handling sails. and the sails getting a fine chance to stretch into shape. Mr. E. D. Morgan was on board, giving his personal attention to everything, and for a great part of the time he had the wheel. Capt. "Lem" Miller's strong point is handling sails, and it is expected that if Mr. Morgan finds he is equal to the task he will have the wheel a great deal during the coming races and Capt. Miller will give personal attention to the sails. The Columbia had gone to the east when she started out and shedid most of the sailing during the day off Oyster Bay, where there was a better wind than further west.

The mainsail of the Reliance was unbent early in the morning, and one which is marked "a" in the clew was put on in its place. When the sail was bent on, it was hoisted and the light breeze soon blew out the wrinkles. When this work was finished, it was dinner time for the crew, and the men went over to the tender Sunbeam, and returned to the yacht an hour later.

It was expected that the two yachts would try conclusions again yesterday, but the wind was fickle and they were never able to get near each other. The club topsail of the Reliance was sent aloft at 1 o'clock, and then there was a long tedious wait for the wind. It was nearly 3 o'clock before it freshened at all and Mr. Iselin promptly took advantage of it and went on board the yacht. The moorings were dropped, head sails broken out and in a nice little southerly breeze the Reliance stood on the starboard tack, heading east southeast. A reaching jib topsail was sent up and

Then the wind grew lighter, and at 3:18 o'clock the Reliance took the port tack. Both yachts were trying to hold a faint zephyr and head in toward the Long Island zephyr and head in toward the Long Island, shore. They were about half a mile apart. They simply drifted along with the flood tide. Occasionally a breath of air would fill out the jib topsails and help them a little, but there was little prospect of a

Then the wind freshened a little and the Then the wind freshened a little and the spinnaker of the Reliance was set to port.

The crew handled the big spar and sail smartly, and one minute and fifteen seconds after the boom had been lifted off the deck the sail was broken out. The Reliance carried the spinnaker for fifteen minutes, then the breeze freshened so that there was soon a fine sailing wind from the south by east. The yacht reached on the port tack part way across the sound. Then the jib topsail was taken in and she made a few tacks to windward and for a little more than half an hour she had a fine sail-stretching spin. She reached in to her

NEW SAILS FOR RELIANCE. Yachting Sharps at Bristol Do Not Attach

Importance to Tuesday's Spin. BRISTOL, R. I., May 6 .- The Constitution arrived here at about 9 o'clock to-night from Glen Cove. She came to get a new mast and a new gaff, and it is also reported that she may have a new club topsail. The new mast is two feet longer than the present one. It will be stepped to-morrow, as it is all ready, having been made without knowledge of the work leaking out.

It is also learned that the Reliance is to return here in a few days. It is said that she is to have a new suit of sails. The yachting sharps hereabouts do not attach much importance to the result of the brush with Columbia yesterday. They say, that in view of the fact that the yacht was to return here so soon, it was not believed that Barr thought it advisable to push her yesterday

BROOKLYN HORSE SHOW. Many Society Folk on Hand-Heather-

The eleventh annual Horse Show of the Riding and Driving Club of Brooklyn began last night at Prospect Park Plaza in the presence of a big crowd of society folk. The feature of the night was the jumping contest, with Heatherbloom, holder of the world's record of 7 feet 9 inches, as the main attraction. Donnelly did not seem to get much good out of the brown ball-face, for he brought down the top bar twice at 4 feet 6 inches. Probably the champion thought the leap beneath his notice, but, anyway, he acted stubbornly. Donnelly finally won first and second, with Toronto and Rifle. The show opened with a class of roadsters

14 hands 2 inches, to be shown before a runabout; conformation, quality, style, good and the men went over to the tender Sunbeam, and returned to the yacht an hour later.

Mr. Iselin and his friends went on board the tender soon after noon. To a reporter for The Sun, Mr. Iselin said:

"I don't altogether agree with what the newspapers said this morning about the brush the Reliance and Columbia had off Glen Cove. When going over toward Glen Cove, we were not at all sure that Mr. Morgan would give us a chance to try the Reliance against the Columbia, especially as we were earrying a big jib topsail.

"When I saw that he was willing to have a brush I told Barr to keep off with the Reliance, give her a good full and to take in the jib topsail as soon as we were ready to tack, so that the two yachts would sail on even terms.

"We tacked to leeward of the Columbia and later on we tacked again after we had crossed her wake. On those two tacks it seemed to me that the Reliance pointed a little higher than the Columbia, but the Columbia was footing faster than we were. SHARKEY GETS DECISION. August Faust Falls to Throw Sallor Three Times in One Hour. A large crowd turned out last night at Sulzer's Harlem River Park to see August Faust of Germany and Tom Sharkey, the heavyweight pugilist, wrestle. The men met at mixed style and at the end of the contest on the starboard tack, heading east southeast. A reaching jib topsail was sent up and broken out and in the light breeze the yacht was travelling about eight miles an hour. The Columbia was to the eastward, and the Reliance soon bore off, so that the two yachts were heading toward one another. The Columbia was on the port tack, and had a baby jib topsail aloft.

The mainsail of the Reliance set well and was a marked improvement over the former sails that have been used by the yacht. It reaches out fully to the end of the gaff and boom and is tight along the leach. The club topsail also stood well, and the only faulty piece of canvas on the yacht was the fore staysail, which was too full on the leach. The sails are by no means perfect, but they can be got to fit well.

full on the leach. The sails are by no means perfect, but they can be got to fit well. The Columbia's sails also fitted better than they did on Monday.

At 3:05 o'clock the reaching jib topsail was changed for a baby jib topsail and the two yachts were carrying the same sails and ready to have a trial.

Sharkey, but without avail. He was united to at his ill success and tried "rough-house" tactics.

Sharkey forgot the rules and began to grab for Faust's legs. At the twenty-first minute Faust almost secured a "roll." Faust had Sharkey tired at this stage and after losing a half Nelson got a full Nelson and slowly turned Sharkey on his back for a slowly turned Sharkey on his back for a fall. The time was 22 minutes 39 seconds. In their next attempt they fiddled a few seconds and then went to the mat. strength, too. But he was game and went at his work.

Suddenly Sharkey stood up and made a feint as though he were boxing. Faust jumped to one side and brought the fighter to the mat. But Sherkey managed to avoid what looked like an inevitable fall. Sharkey became the aggressor at the twentieth minute. He didn't remain on top long, for Faust grappled Sharkey. He had Sharkey's shoulders against the mat, but not long enough to score. He alternated with Sharkey in this position until the thirtieth minute. When Sharkey was declared the winner the crowd cheered lustily.

The opening bout was between George Fisher, instructor of the New Polo A. C. and Tom Reilly, of Ireland. Fisher agreed to throw Reilly twice in thirty minutes at catchas-catch can style. In view of his being the aggressor the referee declared Fisher the winner.

Two lads about 8 and 10 years old respectively next went on. After wrestling for about two minutes, the police interfered and stopped further proceedings. Bill Brown of the Pastime A. C. met Phil Kelly, the former amateur welterweight champion, in a fifteen minute bout, catch-as-catch-can style. The result was a draw, neither getting a fall.

GOLF.

Driving and Putting Competitions at Dyker

Meadow. Women members of the Dyker Meadow Golf Club opened their season yesterday by competitions at driving and putting for prizes presented by the club. The driving was from the old third tee, at 100-yard boundaries, the winner being Miss Schawzalder, with 364 yards for three trials.
